and No. 475 Broadway, Albany.

"A TREATISE ON BILLS OF Exchasge and Promissory Notes. By lease Edwards, Counselor-at-Law. Banks, Gould & Co. The materials of this work being based on the decisions of our own courts, does not come into competition with any English work to the subject; nor can it be ascened a rival of anything which has yet appeared in this connery. The object has been to ascertain the law and state it in brief terms with such illustrations as seemed calculated to develop and explain the reason on which it is founded. Estimating the toportaine of the subject with reference to the smount of property aff at in the shape of bills and notes, there nover has been a time when it called for greater accuracy and discramination than now, or invited the attention of merchants and professional men with equal bragency." [N Y. Journal of Connected, Oct 21 1857.

"A Treatist on Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes. By Isaac Edwards, Counselor-at-Law. New York: Banks, Gould & Co., As the latest decision is deemed the highest authority in legal matters, the latest treatise or digest of sases on any branch of the law must be of the greatest value to practitioners, provided, of course, that it be faithfully compiled and judiciously arranged. These requirements being met by the volume before us, we may justly recummend Mr Edwards's treatise to the geath men of the bar. It is preeminent y an American law book, lacorporating the substance of nearly two thousand American decisions with the principles of law regarding negotiable paper established by the adjudications of the English Courts and setting forth in notes the statutes of the State in which the commercial law is not adopted. By way of appen dix, a translation is given of that part of the commercial code of France relating to bills of exchange and promissory notes.
The index is very minute, and chables the reader to find in a moment what the law is on any point of the subject. The work is primarily ada

and having reference to many points not touched upon in the English books.

"Nor is it merely to the law as exhibited in the adjudged cases that Mr. Edwards confines himself. With a view to give his book a greater practical utility, he has embodied in it the statute provisions of the various States, which from the difficulty of getting access to a complete sortes of the statutes of the States, will prove a great convenience. Not only is a collection of State statutes not be touched for in any private hibrary, there are only two or three public libraries in this country which contain anything at all complete. Our new York Law Libra y is wretchedly deficient on this score.

"The bulk to which the law on the subject of negotiable paper has expanded itself to apparent from the size of this work, which, without any undue prolixity, extends itself to nearly eight hundred pages. The last chapter gives that this of the commercial code of France which relates to exchange and promissory notes."

Read what The Public Ledged says of it:

"This is one of the completest and most comprehensive household books ever written. There are at present so many good works of the kind published, that the only way in which we can fairly review the one in question is to give its contents. The first part treats of home and its employments such as house cleaning repairing furniture, cleaning silk lace, clearens and floors mending china—in short, a great variety of very miscellaneous directions. Part II, treats of health and beauty, with rules for freeting ordinary diseases and injuries, pois ma, preparations of baths and bathing the Lifet and dressing table. From this we have very varied and well-propared chapters on home pursuits and the demestic arts, domestic economy, the mistress, mother, nurse and mad, inits about articulture and gardening with domestic arimals and 'elegant and ingenisus arts.' In this last named division is a large collection of those recipes a very few of which are generally said for a dollar by those who advertise in the papers. A sure way to make a living.' Then comes work in diseas and out, personal matter—a olimplet book of empacts in the papers. A sure way to make a living.' Then comes work in diseas and out, personal matter—a olimplet book of empacts in itself—beath and weakin, and in conclusion, the family at home, courts uling a great amount of curious and very varied knowledge. Take it altogether, we know of mone focks to well outenized to be generally useful, and are certain that every family last the country anould have a copy of it since it would axe its cost in a year, perhaps one hundred times over. It is a good book from beginning to end, and one that a mould find a pace in every house in the land."
